Introduction/Business Problem

Zurich City, Switzerland becomes more and more a place for food with new restaurants opening every month. On the other hand, investment and operating costs for restaurants are very high. To be successful, it is important to choose the right location. This report gives an overview of current restaurant offering by cuisine in the city's districts. Potential restaurant owner may use this information when considering locations to open new restaurants.

Data

I will use data about restaurants from Foursquare and evaluate them according to their location (district) and cuisine. In additionally I used other data such as rent-prices for restaurant properties. Below listed are the features of the dataset:

- Company name
- Year
- Place
- Rent
- Area/District Code
- Type of Restaurant
